PROSPECTS FOR GOOD BASEBALL TEAM THIS YEAR

Boys are Talking it Over and will Make Arrangements For The Necessary Funds

It is rumored that Gem, Majorville and Glesic have already begun to talk baseball for the coming season, and Gem, which last year proved itself cool of the walk, is planning a great Spring offensive with all kinds of ammunition on hand. The prospects of Bassano being able to take the spark out of this team is also now being discussed, as well as a series of games with the neighboring towns.

If all reports are true Bassano has material this year that should make for itself a team almost equal to the one which was financed here generations ago with thousands of good Canadian dollars, which would come in quite handy in the pocket of the offisness now. Just sign up Phil Leslie. He can talk baseball from daylight to dark, and start again in the middle and, with a bottle of good Scotch at hand, he can start again in the middle and talk both ways. He can tell you how he played with the 3 I League which won the pennant in Coronet County, Idaho; he has played with the W. I. and Northwestern Leagues and was decorated with an iron cross for his bravery, and then he played later with the Drumheller baseball club.

Regis, manager of the Aiden Laundry Co., is said to be another pillar of the game. He has played semi-pro ball at the coast with different clubs and never can catch him between the bags because he is long enough to stretch from 1st to 2nd base.

Balian is another fast young man having played with semi-pro boys in North Dakota and Minnesota, while Palmer has played semi-pro around the Mormon State of Utah and has mixed up with quite a few until he finally landed in the same game in Idaho.

Notier is guaranteed to talk the other team out of many a run if he is feeling well and had a good night the night before, and anyway he is a semi-professional in baseball as well as many other sports. Forster has ten years' playing to his credit and can now roll off a few tunes extempore. Fort William and Winnipegs were his stamping grounds.

And then there are our local boys who might be able to swing around Phil Leslie who should be captain of the team. Of these McLaughlin, Currie, Thouris, J. Stinson, P. O'Brien, G. H. Stiles, H. Smith and Jack Allen took test in uniform, and would make up a very good company.

A meeting will be called soon for those interested enough to attend, and a date will be set aside for a baseball dance to get the funds for ammunition.

ALL DRESSED UP

According to The Calgary Herald here is the uniform to be worn by the Provincial Police, which force will be represented here by Constable Buxton.

The uniform to be worn by the police will be the same as that of the London Metropolitan police—blue serge cape, patrol jacket for the officers and tunics for the men, riding breeches with black leggings and boots. Dress trousers and spurs complete the equipment.

LATHOM

Mr. Thompson arrived from Dayton, Oregon last week. Mr. W. came by to pay a few days later accompanied by two loads of horses, farm machinery etc., with which he expects to tear up all the present roads and to lay out a new road system in this part of Alberta.

The Wimstall family have moved from the store to their new four miles out of the city. The general store and post office are in charge of Mr. McIlwain who is a live wire and happy to sell, yes whatever you want to buy or stock.

Mr. Kishman the Lethbridge construction man is having buildings up at a farm south of the Leslie dock and expects to move down to begin farming in the middle of March.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman have moved to their farm and are putting up buildings. Some of us are worried about what kind of clothes the new residents are wearing as we want to know what to look for on the horizon while skinning our "hoppers" earlier. (Editor please supply this omission from last week's Mail.)

When last seen he was wearing a black moustache, but not uniform.—ED.

George Peavy of Mable Lake B.C., who has been the most popular at Car's ranch since his arrival with the Mounties.

J. O. Carr was in Calgary on business recently.

Several allies of the Huns appeared above ground in the mid winter of last week to plan destruction to our crops.

FIRE AT CLUNY

The engine house of the oil well engine was burned to the ground on Monday night and the engine badly damaged by a fire which started as the result of friction on gasoline-sprinkled clothes.

It appears from reports that Mrs. Bob Cusman, the manager's wife, was in the engine house ironing clothes which had been cleaned with gasoline, when suddenly the clothes caught fire. The flames spread with such rapidity that it was impossible to save the building. The elevator itself was not in any danger at all from the flames.

T. H. Hunter spent a few days in Calgary this week looking over the Cedar gardens with a view to establishing one here-by-law or no by-law.

BRIDGE WILL BE BUILT

Following on a report turned in by the engineer appointed by the Department of Public Works of the province, it has been decided to place the bridge across the Red Deer river at Emerson's ferry, the point advocated by the large delegation which went up to Edmonton from across the river and from Bassano.

It was found that the hills on the south side of the river at this point had a better grade than at any other point along the Red Deer and as the river conditions for ferry service at Emerson's were poor in comparison to other points, these facts influenced the department in deciding on the Emerson crossing.

The material has been ordered and will be shipped to Duchess. Just as soon as it can be delivered, work will start, and it is hoped to have the bridge completed by the end of April.

JOHN DAVIES DEAD

The death occurred in Calgary on Friday of last week of John Davies of Favor of Favor, the demise resulting from diabetes. The late Mr. Davies was for some time secretary of the Rural Municipality of Bulsas, No. 215, and only last year resigned from that position owing to ill health. At the January elections he was elected to the position of Councillor of the same municipality, and occupied that position at the time of his death.

Last week he came into Bassano to consult Dr. Scott, who immediately advised him to seek medical advice in Calgary, but this proved to no avail, and his demise occurred as stated above.

Mr. Davies, who was a bachelor, leaves no relatives on this side of the ocean, but had a brother, and sisters in Wales.

Good Friday came into Bassano on April 6th and Easter Sunday, April 9th.

Farmers are still hauling grain into the elevators here although the roads and trails are not in the best of condition.

The Hutton Red Cross Society will give a dance in Hutton hall tomorrow night. If the roads were only in good shape there might be a good attendance from Bassano.

H. W. Fatin who has been down south for the winter months, is back again getting ready for the season's work on the farm.

Several carloads of good farm horses have been brought into town the past week, and sold at good prices.

The town of Bassano is offering all its vacant lots for gardening purposes. How many will you have please? Perhaps you will buy one or two at the coming tax sale.

Be Irish for once, and attend the dance on Friday, St. Patrick's eve.

The affair is under the auspices of the Red Cross Society, and the ladies are attending to the decoration of the hall. The Bresson orchestra will be in attendance. Dance will commence sharp at 9 o'clock, and you are requested to be one of the early arrivals.

John S. Mavor and Mayor Travis journeyed up to Edmonton on separate trains, Mr. Mayor leaving on Sunday, and the mayor on Monday, the two going to interview the government re: the cancellation of Melville subdivision for the town. Incidentally John S. Mavor may get a little inside information regarding the forming of a legislature, and Mayor Travis should investigate the advertising of Edmonton's tax enforcement sale.

"All animals running over any land in this municipality at any time of the year will be liable to impounding. And if a dog has been running at large or in bounds it will be liable to impounding and if found desecrating crops, or crops in the act of being harvested, it will be liable to a fine of $100.00.

Further, that section 4 of by-law No. 1 be struck out and the following substituted:

"All animals running at large or in bounds will be liable to impounding. And if a dog has been running at large or in bounds it will be liable to impounding and if found desecrating crops, or crops in the act of being harvested, it will be liable to a fine of $100.00 for each offense."

Farmers from Idaho Take Land
At Gem, Rosemary and Other Points

Sixteen carloads of settlers' effects including live stock, personal effects implements and household furniture arrived in town on Monday night, and with the goods came as many settlers to take up vacant land around here.

The new residents came all the way from Idaho, and will immediately start in filling the soil at Gem Colony, Rosemary Colony and Duchess. These people appeared to have plenty of money, with them, leaves no relatives on this side of the ocean, but had a brother, and sisters in Wales.

P. W. STONE, Editor

Spring surely must be here when the boys start talking baseball and the gophers come out of the ground to see if the war is over yet. The boys have started in on their annual talkfest about baseball and will shortly put in a dance to raise funds, and the gophers are making their appearance because our Lethbridge correspondent says he saw them last week.

So Spring is surely coming. Of the prospects for a baseball team for this town the coming season The Mail has dealt elsewhere in its columns. There appears to be an excellent aggregation of boys who are able and willing to handle a club, and they should receive excellent support on the part of the citizens in attempting to carry on the game during the season. There was a time, ages ago, when Bassano put up all sorts of money to put a good ball team in the field and put Bassano on the map. Of the wisdom of that under these changed conditions, The Mail is not prepared to express an opinion, but when it comes down to such a little thing as a small local organization which can almost pay its own way, then there cannot possibly be much objection to putting up a dollar or two to pay expenses. Still even that is a matter of individual opinion.

Gen. Majorville, Gleichen and possibly Brooks might come in on a little league and get the thing going. This would at least put the towns on very friendly terms with each other, and the rivalry would prove exhilarating as well as possibly exciting. It is about the only sport that can be expected for the summer season, except perhaps a little fishing trip when Boxcar's not looking, so let's pitch in and help it along.

Says The Swift Current Herald: During the coming summer some fifty towns and cities of the West will be visited by the Chataqua entertainers from the States. This means that anywhere from a quarter of a million to half a million dollars will be taken out of the Canadian west to a foreign country for amusement that we can very well dispense with during these times of national service and war emergencies.

Then's our sentiments exactly.

The announcement from Edmonton that the bridge across the Red Deer will be built at Emerson's ferry will be welcome news to the people of Hutton, and especially to the large delegation through whose efforts the promise was acquiesced to by the Provincial government.

It is quite probable, as the news item in another column of this issue states, that the structure will be rushed to rapid completion so that the farmers across the Red Deer may be accommodated. The fact that the bridge will be built at all demonstrates the fact that it is only the kicker who accomplished something, and he gets little enough. The man who will not kick gets nothing and gets all he deserves.

Bassano is delighted with the prospects of the bridge even though it may mean practically nothing to the town. The citizens stood behind the delegation and sent its representatives to Edmonton with them, believing that anything that helps develop the country in general is worth assisting.

With potatoes at such a big price, it is very undignified to call them "spuds."

A fellow named "Ratepayer" up in Gleichen has been getting Haden lately for presuming to tell the farmers of Queenstown and Majorville where the bridge across the Bow river should be. A fellow named Nesbitt in Brooks tried the same stunt on the farmers across the Red Deer, and he will probably get the same treatment in different form.

Brooks will not put on a tax sale this year. What the matter, isn't the property worth anything?

KILLS PAIN

The Squire's Sweetheart

BY

KATHARINE TYNAN

WARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED
London, Melbourne, and Toronto

"I don't object to his liberality," said Hilary, wondering why she should behave as though it were a personal matter. "He is a good friend to us Liberals. Radicals. He is a sleek hypocrite. He is gradually becoming more and more valuable. He bought out Dobbs, the other grocer, whom we all liked, and ruined him. He is becoming more and more richly round the country. He is buying rotten cottages for the great. The old thatched ones, the last, but why am I saying all this to you? You can have no possible interest to you."

"Except that he is our landlord. Even in the New Cottage, I can't help keeping an eye on him, I have cause for complaint."

"Yes, he is a bore, though a little congeited here. Lélie likes to have people down for week-ends, she would like to have him here. Then there are generally men and don't give much trouble."

"She has a woman in a room in the village, and she has a great much room for servants in these places. You can hear her from the old cottage. It is a little bit dark, but the walls are 'thick and close.' One feels safe and sound there; here it is suburban."

The kettle boiled as he made the tea. Mrs. Egerton had a tea-cup, forgotten while he poured the water on the tea in the cold pot from a teapot, which he had brought from a picture book.

Hilary's tea was highly commendable. He had a good name, and of its making to her brother. She had a humorous shyness, poking sly fun at the tea-kettle. Her eyes were soft and kind. It was a good tea. The girl that she had a sense of her mother's taste, and included her sister-in-law in the test, did not give a single laugh when her husband and the Squire's family there was an understanding between them and a sister into which the wife did not enter.

Again the subject of Mr. Draper came up unexpectedly. The Squire grunted.

"Our landlord's five shillings a pound, is it, Louis?" Or is it five pence?" said Mrs. Egerton unamazingly. "It costs two shillings a pound; it is very good tea."

"I don't know if there is something good, besides the tea all over the house," said the Squire dryly.

"Oh, he's not a bad sort, for a boy preacher," Egerton said laconically. "Are you going to his services?" "He's placcarded all over the place," said the Squire. "All Men are Liars." Men could not all laugh except Mrs. Egerton, who seemed to have no sense of humor, and only looked bewildered.

"Draper's brother-in-law is no end of a fool," Draper said, "but he's on."

"He's a queer mind in the Draper's menage. Not much church or school, but he's a good man, and will have his hands full to match Harry Cooper from the burning," he repeated.

"I don't know his name," the Squire said.

"You must have seen him. Walks with a cane, and a dog, and a dandy-like old man evidently thinks he doesn't like it talked about. When I suggested he was obviously absent, he said he had been drilled at school. Prefer to lie like that."

Major Strangways, watching Mrs. Egerton's face, saw her eyes lightened with a singularly forcible, last, and fearful, came into it. "I wonder what could have disturbed him. He was particularly fretful as when the wind breaks up the surface of the water."

"Deserve, perhaps," suggested the Squire, "but he's all right after all. He was at Breakfast Hill the night of the accident. Run into a trap, and got his leg broken. I remember. How I said to myself that he was a trained disciplinarian, and that he would be all right when he came up again."

"He was not. He was particularly frightened when he came up again."

"Don't you imagine a good deal," Mr. Cooper said in a chatty voice.

"He's a good man, for a while in an American regiment when he was there."

"He's a good man, but he's never learnt from an American sergeant anything," said Mrs. Egerton, "nothing, I mean, that I don't know! All sorts of other things too." Her Dolly's right-hand man, who had been a good deal with her, could not tell her much for us. You can't offer him money. There's just a bit of a gap between the two of them, but that. He has built all. Dolly's round with his own hands; and she has big eyes, and she just now putting up a garden-shelter for my wife. They were all old for me, and she's ungrateful. She can't bear Cooper, and all he's done for her."

"Mrs. Egerton said in her cold, queenly way, "I am bound to be obliged to him, and to fulfil my social and force obligations upon you."

"Dolly's face."

"She'll take Mr. Strangways out to dinner, I suppose. I asked her, when you discuss Mr. Cooper, what you mean by 'he's an ungrateful man'?"

"It seems to me that he has, in his ungratefulness, given up his obligations to us, and to his wife."

"Mrs. Egerton was silent, and then followed a few moments of silence.

"He turned to the Squire with an apologetic smile. The Old Cottage was Dolly's country home, where she had lived in Suburbia, over there, every evening after dinner," he said. "Most girls would find it lonely. Dolly has a dog, and she exercises him every day. She could do without us very well, though she has been over every day to see after things for my wife, who is not very strong."

"She could not be without you, Lélie," said Mrs. Egerton, "and I am sure, Susan. She could do very well without me."

Mr. Egerton's fair, open face blushed perceptibly.

"Let me go and see the damage," he said, "and then I will speak to Lord Egerton."

"Lord Egerton, I am sure, will be angry with you," said Mrs. Egerton.

"I am sure, Susan, that he will be angry with you."
